PROANTIC
LE PLUS BEAU CATALOGUE D'ANTIQUITES

Folding-top Desk That Doubles As A Console Table, Made Of Flamed Mahogany And Marble

1 400 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Mahogany

Width : 81cm

Height : 138cm

Depth : 48cm

Description

A superb and rare Empire-period (early 19th century) ladies' writing desk in flamed mahogany veneer, featuring a refined, dual-purpose design. Topped with a thick gray-black marble slab, it opens at the top to reveal a drawer and a drop-down panel adorned with a mirror framed by two freestanding columns featuring rings and capitals in chiseled and gilded bronze. When opened, the flap reveals a writing surface upholstered in dark green leather with gilded detailing and original small iron fittings, as well as an interior compartment consisting of an arched niche flanked by small columns and five small drawers with brass knobs. The lower section rests on a console base featuring a large drawer running around the base, supported at the front by freestanding columns and at the back by

Dealer

Eleousa gallery

Antiquités

Mobile : 0749880239

4 place de la croix

Ouroux-sur-Saône 71370

straight uprights, all joined by a crossbar cut in a semicircular shape. A distinctive piece with a lustrous finish, ideal for adding a touch of historic elegance to a living room or entryway.Beautiful assembly of the solid mahogany theater drawersVideo available upon request