Description

Khorjin Rug - Shiraz, Persia - Circa 1900Originating from the Shiraz region in southern Persia, this magnificent Khorjin rug is a testament to the craftsmanship of the nomadic peoples who once roamed this region. Made around 1900, it is woven and knotted using wool-on-wool techniques in accordance with traditional methods. Its relatively compact size and rich composition give it a distinctive presence. At the top, one can see the woven and embroidered closure system, revealing slits into which rings were inserted to fasten the bag.The composition is organized around a central medallion with geometric contours, enclosing a series of small stylized floral motifs. On either side, two perfectly balanced sections feature large angular figures, punctuated by diamonds and serrated motifs. A few depictions of birds enliven the central field. The whole is framed by finely drawn borders, creating a particularly harmonious composition.The vegetable dyes contribute greatly to the beauty of this piece. Madder red and deep indigo blue dominate, accompanied by shades of turquoise, lighter blue, ivory, and touches of saffron yellow and orange. Their intensity, depth, and the contrasts they create give this work a striking luminosity that has been preserved for over a century.Khorjin Rug - Shiraz, PersiaWoven and knotted wool on woolPlant-based dyesCirca 1900Dimensions: 70 × 60 cmPerfect conditionChoosing an antique rug or textile is often a matter of serendipity.
