Description

- A Flemish tapestry woven in a workshop in Oudenaarde in the early 17th century. - This tapestry depicts a lively landscape featuring several distinct scenes: a military encampment on the left, sheep being sheared in the center, and a court hearing on the right. The figures move through a setting rich with greenery: trees, flowers, and plants fill the scene. Numerous anecdotal details populate this tapestry--details that are pleasing to the eye and full of charm, such as the sheep shearing or the soldier's choreographed pose on the right. - This tapestry features a border with floral and plant motifs that serves as a decorative frame. This border, dating from the 18th century, was added later with great care, particularly to preserve continuity at the corners. - In good condition, though some wear
