A doll, a drawing of a castle and the inscription 'Fundevogel' (Foundling Bird), the title of a Grimm fairy tale, evoke the world of childhood. The scene suggests a child's bedroom, where toys and pictures mingle in the child's imagination. The crisp line recalls the German drawing tradition, while watercolour-like washes give the scene a dreamlike quality.
Margrit von Spreckelsen (1940-2017) studied painting under Karl Kluth in Hamburg, exhibited at the Landesmuseum in Oldenburg and made prints for Griffelkunst.
