Description

Antique ceramic ginger jar with a lid, decorated with Sancai enamelA Chinese craftwork from the late Qing Dynasty, converted into a lamp during the first half of the 20th centuryThe pot features a crackled amber-yellow/ochre glaze, adorned with a polychrome enamel decoration depictingthe "Hundred Antiquities" (Bogu) motif. It depicts scholarly and decorative objects symbolizing good fortune, such as vases containing chrysanthemums and plum blossoms, stacks of books, scroll cases, incense burners, and ruyi scepers. The lid is topped with a lotus bud-shaped finial and adorned with butterfly motifsThe metalwork is the result of a classic European restoration dating from the early to mid-20th century. The metal collar and curved support fit perfectly around the neck and the original
