Description

An elegant and stunning etching with a trompe l'oeil effect, enhanced with watercolor on late 19th-century period paper. It depicts a drawing of a opossum (a small marsupial native to the Americas) combined with various pieces of paper, such as fragments of maps, letters, and colored drawings, mounted on a wooden backing sealed with wax. A work of great finesse and true realism, in which the colors have remained vivid and luminous. The piece is mounted under glass in a wooden frame with gilded stucco molding and a waterleaf motif. In very good condition; please note very slight traces of moisture.
