Description

An extremely elegant secretaire with a drop-down top, veneered in mahogany and embellished with refined mercury-gilded bronze inlays.
Light-colored wooden interior; crafted by French artisans during the Early Empire period.The front panel is framed by two beautiful, tall columns with finely chiseled gilded bronze bases and capitals, as well as a wide drop-down compartment (upper section) and two doors (lower section). It follows the typical design of this type of furniture, which originated during the Napoleonic era and is known as a "Secrètaire." The appearance is distinctly marked by the beautiful aesthetic effect of the mahogany grain, which imbues the entire piece with a luminous brilliance--a quality further enhanced by the excellent restoration carried out by our team of
