Description

Amulet depicting two crouching figures Carved horn, likely from a water buffalo, with a dark, glossy brown patina; shows signs of wear; has a crack and a chip near a hole. Toba Batak, Sumatra, Indonesia. Dimensions: 8.5 × 3 cm. Two crouching figures face each other, their heads touching. Their ears are outlined with spirals. The holes at the ends were used to thread cords through. This amulet likely belongs to the tradition of Toba Batak protective figures.
