Description

A bronze tabletop mirror in the Etruscan-Archaic Revival style, dating from the late 19th century. The handle, in the form of a male caryatid, features a bearded male figure in an archaic style. The decorated disc displays a figurative scene in bas-relief, with two dancing figures in draped garments depicted at the center of the roundel. In the second half of the 19th century, following major archaeological discoveries in Tuscany and Lazio, workshops specializing in the creation of antique-style objects for Grand Tour travelers flourished.
