Description

Antique American mechanical cash register National Cash Register, manufactured in Dayton, Ohio (United States), likely dating from the early 20th century.A beautiful model with rich embossed decoration, featuring numerous floral and ornamental motifs characteristic of vintage cash registers from the National Cash Register company.The machine retains its four amount-selection sliders, side crank, digital display, and cash drawer. It also retains its original inscriptions: "National" and "The National - Dayton, Ohio, U.S.A."The upper section features a decorative metal frame, the central panel of which has been replaced with a black-painted wooden piece, handcrafted by a previous owner. This element is therefore not original.The cash register shows signs of wear,
