Description

A cane with a concealed sword mechanism. The square pommel is made of light-colored horn, imitating the grain of wood. It is connected to the blade by an ornate metal ring, which conceals a small push button that allows the sword to be drawn. The shaft is made of bamboo with a brass and metal ferrule. The blade has retained its straightness and shows some signs of oxidation. The wood also shows signs of wear. Dating from the late 19th century, it is in good condition, and the mechanism is in perfect working order.
