Description

Tembladera or catavinos. Silver. 18th century.One handle is missing. A vessel known as a "catavinos" or "tembladera" (because it has no foot), made of unpolished silver, featuring a flat, curved handle shaped like a "that," decorated with simplified plant motifs, and a row of "bits" (shaped like galleons) along the rim, accented by a smooth band. On the inside, it features rows of beads and dots, as well as a cross in the background. Bernegales and morsels were common motifs in 17th-century Spanish silverwork, but they were generally relegated to less prominent positions in the 18th century. Compare it to pieces such as the silver bernegal from the last third of the 17th century in the Lázaro Galdiano Museum (possibly from the Portuguese school; inventory no. 3916), or the
