Description

A very interesting little table for Farrier or blacksmith, serving as both a workbench and a toolbox. Made with primitive construction, it is beautifully painted in blue, giving it a very attractive decorative presence. Featuring a wrought-iron handle, it has six compartments of varying sizes for carrying and using all the tools a farrier will need. A true piece of folk art craftsmanship. In good overall condition; there is an old restoration on the underside, with one of the nails visible from above, and a few areas where the paint is missing, though these in no way detract from its charm. Folk art, likely French, dating from the very end of the 19th century, circa 1880-1900.Dimensions: 45 cm² x 52 cm H with handle SHIPPING CONDITIONS BELOW Shipped via carrier. I work with two
