Description

Large torch holders from the late 16th century, Lucca schoolDescription: A stunning pair of carved, openwork, and polychrome wooden torch holders, made in Lucca (Tuscany) toward the end of the 16th century.Dimensions: Height: 175 cmEach piece features an ingenious structure composed of cross-joined panels with shaped and openwork profiles, resting on a mixed-line tripod base. The ornamentation is distinguished by a dark background imitating ebony, richly embellished with grotesque motifs, foliage scrolls, palmettes, and volutes in warm tones of golden ochre, cinnabar red, and blue-gray. The base is embellished with motifs of pod-shaped vases from which delicate floral bouquets, inspired by Tuscan nature, bloom. The crown retains the original plate surmounted by the
