Description

A superb sculpture by Paul Philippe (1870-1930), depicting an elegant dancer in a pose full of grace and movement.Crafted from white marble and gilded bronze, this work captivates with the harmonious contrast between the softness of the finely carved marble and the rich golden hues of the bronze.The delicacy of the facial features, the fluidity of the posture, and the refinement of the costume attest to remarkable artistic mastery.Paul Philippe is particularly renowned for his female figures, which combine elegance, sensuality, and dynamism. His creations beautifully illustrate the transition from Art Nouveau to Art Deco.A work of great elegance, representative of the artistic refinement of the early 20th century.Artist: Paul Philippe (1870-1930)Period: Early 20th centuryStyle: Art DecoMaterials: White marble
