Description

"Tavannes" full hunter pocket watch, circa 1920, including the chain. The Tavannes Watch Co. is a historic Swiss watch manufacturer founded in 1891 by Henri-Frédéric Sandoz. In the first half of the 20th century, it became one of the world's leading manufacturers of watches and mechanical movements, operating in close collaboration with the Cyma brand. The company maintained a very close dual structure with Cyma. The calibers were often produced in the Tavannes factories and marketed under both names or with dual branding. Between the 1910s and the 1940s, the company reached colossal proportions for its time and introduced important patents. The brand was relaunched in the 2000s by the new company Tavannes Watch Co. to offer mechanical watches inspired by the company's historical heritage.
