Description

A mid-19th-century Dutch drop-front cabinet, crafted from fine mahogany and embellished with floral and foliage inlays in maple. The decorations on the sides depict lion heads and vases, lending the piece a distinctive elegance. The design features a roll-top that opens along with the pull-out top, revealing an interior compartment with drawers, open shelves, a central door, and secret compartments--ideal for storing valuable items. The interior top is finished with a leather insert, adding a touch of luxury. The front section features a curved profile with three drawers and an apron below, while the protruding 45-degree-angled legs end in animal-shaped feet, highlighting the craftsmanship of the period. The interior is made of oak, and the handles and keyholes in
