Description

Pair of Murano glass and gilded bronze wall sconces attributed to the Italian firm VENINI. 1970s. Founded in 1921 in Murano, near Venice, the company is particularly renowned for its blown glass creations, its lighting fixtures, and its collaborations with leading 20th-century designers and architects. Our pair of wall sconces consists of two large sheets of clear glass, featuring fine white striations. The frame is made of gilded bronze. Each wall sconce features two light sources. Its botanical and sculptural aesthetic is characteristic of certain Italian light fixtures from the 1960s and 1970s. The glasswork evokes the filigran technique, which involves incorporating fine white glass threads into clear glass to create linear patterns.
