Description

A trompe-l'oeil hunting still life depicting two wood pigeons suspended by their legs from a yellow ribbon attached to a nail.The birds, arranged upside down, display their wings spread wide in a particularly harmonious composition. The fine detail of the plumage, the delicate shades of gray, blue, and pink, and the play of shadows cast on the light background accentuate the impression of depth and realism.The work is signed in the lower right corner and mounted under glass in a gilded frame with a mat.The dimensions listed are those of the drawing.
