Description

A very beautiful 19th-century Chinese altar made of solid exotic wood (ebony?) of the highest quality, inlaid with a very rich and delicate mother-of-pearl decoration featuring birds, flowers, foliage, braided cords, scrolls, and Greek-style latticework...The front of this piece is carved to resemble false drawers. On each side, there are two large drawers, also inlaid with mother-of-pearl motifs. The back of the piece is also carved to resemble false drawers but features no mother-of-pearl inlay.The top, fitted with a glass panel, is cracked in two places. There are a few missing pieces of mother-of-pearl...
