Description

A sculpture carved from natural amethyst, finely crafted in relief and featuring a richly detailed figurative composition. This late 19th-century Chinese work of art depicts several childlike figures accompanied by peaches of longevity, traditional symbols of prosperity, happiness, and immortality in Chinese iconography.The composition stands out for the finesse of its carving, the diversity of its figures, and the harmony of its arrangement. The stone's various shades--ranging from deep purple to translucent lilac tones--create subtle plays of light and particularly highlight the details of the sculptural work.With its natural material, rich iconography, and intricate craftsmanship, this piece is a fine example of Chinese stone carving from the Qing period.Dimensions:Height: 29 cmWidth: 17.5 cm
