Description

A 19th-century Tehran carpet, made of extra-silky kork wool on a cotton backing.Its design is inspired by the traditional "Zil-e Sultan" motif, characterized by floral and ornamental refinement. Against a beige background unfolds a delicate scattering of vases filled with flowers, accompanied by stylized birds.The ivory field is enlivened by fine, sinuous branches in pale pink tones, punctuated by azure blue medallions and stylized floral buds. The hook and diamond motifs, rendered in shades of ruby, beige, and bronze green, add depth and contrast to the overall design. The composition is framed by five successive borders featuring cartouches and bars, emphasizing the balance and richness of its ornamentation.The fineness of the wool and the density of the knotting--estimated at between
