Description

Venus Cutting Off Cupid's WingsFrench painting, mid-19th centuryA captivating painting with a mythological subject, depicting Venus in the act of cutting off the wings of Cupid, her son and the symbol of love. Set in a lush wooded landscape, the scene captures a moment of delicate liveliness between the goddess and the young god, caught in the act of trying to escape his mother's grasp.The composition stands out for the softness of the figures, the attention to anatomical detail, and the delicate balance between the luminous skin tones and the deep hues of the landscape. A subject of classical taste, interpreted with 19th-century painterly sensibility and inspired by the French mythological and allegorical tradition. A work from the Parisian circle, executed in oil on canvas and set in a
