Description

Watercolor on paper, titled, dated, and signed in the lower right corner "Dunes of Morbihan - Brittany"Through his subtle palette, the artist poetically captures the wild, peaceful, and slightly melancholic atmosphere of the Breton coastline.Born in Rennes in 1887 and died in Quiberon in 1952, Ernest Guérin was a painter, watercolorist, and illuminator deeply attached to his native Brittany. A distinctive figure in early 20th-century Breton painting, he devoted a large part of his work to the region's landscapes, traditions, and daily life. Influenced in particular by medieval art and illumination, he developed a poetic style of painting, populated by tiny figures set against vast landscapes. This body of work reflects his attachment to an authentic, unspoiled, and timeless Brittany.
