Description

This dining table presents a vast oval top covered in lacquered goatskin (parchment), whose moiré mahogany-brown nuances, pad-varnished, compose a deep and shimmering surface, unique to each example. The top rests on a central cylindrical shaft likewise covered, set on a circular base emphasised by a band of chromed metal that seems to make the whole levitate.Aldo Tura (1909-1963, workshop active until the 1970s in Milan) made lacquered parchment his signature, producing in small, near-artisanal series furniture of great material luxury. His tables in lacquered goatskin are among the most sought-after pieces of Italian design.Condition report: Very good condition. Deep, glossy lacquer, without notable damage, even chrome ring. A spectacular table that will make the dining
