Description

A beautiful antique alabaster sculpture depicting an elegant young woman seated on a pile of rocks, delicately holding a tambourine in her hands. The work is signed GUIOLI (late 19th / early 20th century). This finely carved piece captivates with the great delicacy of its craftsmanship: the facial features, the hairstyle, the hands, and the folds of the garment all demonstrate a remarkable attention to detail and a beautiful mastery of sculpture. The piece displays magnificent, natural, and harmonious shades of alabaster in soft tones of ivory, cream, beige, and powder pink. These subtle color variations lend great depth and softness to the composition.
