Description

Louis XV-Period Sloping Desk with Marquetry, circa 1750Superb Louis XV-era sloping desk, inlaid with rosewood, resting on curved legs terminating in gilded bronze feet.This desk opens with two drawers and a drop-down panel. The drop-down panel reveals compartments, four small drawers, and a beautiful writing surface topped with a fawn-colored leather cover, weathered by time. Beautiful gilded bronze and brass ornamentation, including lock plates, pull knobs, and feet. Exquisite curly marquetry work. Its fluted molding. Very fine wood grain. Comes with its key. Furniture of very fine craftsmanship, with refined and elegant lines. This desk combines practicality--thanks to its numerous storage options--with a beautiful workspace. This piece also makes a striking visual statement with
