Description

Watercolor by René de Saint-Delis (1876-1958) depicting millstones. 24 x 30.5 cm As part of a vibrant regional art scene that included their friends from Le Havre--such as Friesz and Dufy, who were born there, and Braque, who had made the city his home-- René de Saint-Delis and his brother Henri developed their own distinctive style, embracing modernity. In this beautiful watercolor with warm tones, René de Saint-Delis depicts one of his favorite subjects: millstones. A horse and a man are sketched in the background, while a blue horizon line may depict a hill or cliffs. The painter chose to depict two haystacks with very different shapes, allowing him to create a dynamic composition imbued with modernity.
