A beautiful pair of Neo-Renaissance--Neo-Louis XIII--style chairs in solid walnut.Each chair rests on two twisted front legs featuring lovely carved details at their ends.The two rear legs are square in cross-section.The structure is held together by two crossbars, also square in cross-section, and a front crossbar with a curved design, richly decorated with a lovely central cartouche featuring the profile of a soldier in the classical style.The backrests are tall and straight; the upper portion is upholstered in a beautiful fabric and topped by a highly carved pediment.The upright posts are finished with grotesque faces.The upholstery, as well as the covering fabric, was redone fairly recently by the former owner and is in very good condition.A very fine piece from the late 19th century to the early 20th
