Description

A beautiful hanging lantern from the Napoleon III / Belle Époque period, with a truncated pyramidal shape, showcasing the craftsmanship of French metalworkers at the turn of the century, blending Neo-Gothic influences with the early stages of Art Nouveau.The black-patinated wrought-iron structure features intricate metalwork: a crown adorned with volutes and stylized flowers, twisted side posts with stepped sections topped with fleurs-de-lis at the ends, and a base embellished with graceful spirals. The leaded glass panels combine translucent textured cathedral glass with superb polychrome decorations:in the center: four-pointed stars in ruby-red glass, set at their centers with a circular cabochon of faceted blue glass.in the upper section: a green glass frieze enhanced by openwork wrought-iron lace and
