In 1922, at the age of 11, Londi began working for Fratelli Fanciullacci, the region's leading ceramics workshop at the time. After World War II--upon returning to Italy from South Africa, where he had been a prisoner of war--Londi became the Artistic Director of Bitossi. He held this position for more than 50 years and created over 1,000 objects, ranging from carafes and vases to clocks and animal
