Description

A Louis XV ormolu-mounted Satine-wood Table de salon Stamped By Jacques Dubois , Mid 18Th Century A small Transition-period table de salon made of satiné wood, stamped "Jacques Dubois." With an elliptical top, it features a drawer at the front without a crossbar, allowing the scalloped curve of the base to create a perfect visual effect that is as elegant as it is fluid. The so-called "love note" drawer consists of a hinged, movable shelf with a framed, veneered edge; it is lined with morocco leather. The right side features a compartment originally designed to hold an inkwell, powder compact, and quill pens; unfortunately, our table is missing these items. It rests on a base with four slender, slightly arched legs joined by a crossbar encircled by an openwork railing. The whole is topped by a slab
