Description

A Ghom rug from Iran made entirely of silk, featuring an elegant design centered around a rosette, an iconic motif of Persian decorative art. The composition is organized around this central element, which gives the design structure, balance, harmony, and refinement.The city of Ghom is renowned for its exquisitely fine silk carpets, prized for the precision of their weaving, the quality of their craftsmanship, and the richness of their artisanal tradition. The silk lends this piece a distinctive luminosity, revealing subtle plays of light depending on the angle of the light and highlighting the delicacy of the design.The rosette motif, the true centerpiece of the composition, is part of a traditional Persian ornamental repertoire, prized for its elegance and timeless character.This rug also bears the
