Description

Masonic apron of the Royal Arch in the Degree of Fellow Craft.It dates from the late 18th century, between 1780 and 1815.What makes it interesting is its original sword, which proves that the Mason wearing this apron served as Guardian of the Temple (Tuileur) during a meeting--that is, he was responsible for ensuring the security and secrecy of the work.It is in fair condition, given its age and signs of use.
