750-thousandths White Gold Ring With A Pearl And A Diamond, Attributed To Alain Roure

750 EUR

Period : 20th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Gold

Description

With a design that is both modern and understated, this 750 white gold ring perfectly embodies the discreet refinement of French jewelry from the prestigious houses of the Place Vendôme.The setting, with its slightly square profile, combines balance and minimalism in a subtle interplay of architectural lines. At its top, two elements meet: a delicate pearl with a satiny luster and a brilliant-cut diamond weighing approximately 0.25 carats, whose brilliance contrasts with the pearl's soft, pearlescent sheen.This understated and poetic composition embodies a quintessential "haute joaillerie" aesthetic, where every detail is designed to create a dialogue between material and light.Attribution and CraftsmanshipThis ring appears to have been crafted by Alain Roure, a French jeweler based in

Dealer

Pund

Antique jewelry

Mobile : 0674907457

19 ter rue Inkermann

Lille 59000

Vendôme and renowned for his work with several major houses on the Place Vendôme. His style is characterized by clean lines and exceptional craftsmanship--qualities that are fully evident in this creation.DetailsMaterial: 750 ? white gold (18 karats)Stone: Brilliant-cut diamond weighing approximately 0.25 ctOrnament: Fine (or cultured) pearlSize: 49, complex resizingSetting shape: Slightly squareJeweler: Attributed to Alain RoureCondition: Excellent conditionOrigin: FranceWeight: 3.97 gOur OpinionA ring of great elegance, striking a balance between modernity and traditional jewelry-making. The interplay between the pearl and the diamond, enhanced by the geometric precision of the setting, makes this a rare and subtle piece, with a discreet signature yet undeniable craftsmanship.A unique creation that showcases the refinement of French artisanal jewelry.