Description

An elegant mirror made in Emilia, dating from the late 17th century, crafted from finely carved and gilded wood. The ornate frame is distinguished by an elaborate ornamental repertoire of volutes, plant tendrils, floral elements, and scroll motifs, arranged with great harmony around the central mirror panel. The upper pediment, dominated by a prominent floral motif, elegantly connects to the side decorations, while the lower section echoes the same compositional style, lending the piece as a whole remarkable balance and extraordinary sculptural richness. The gilding enhances the depth of the carving and accentuates the sinuous movement of the ornamental elements, a testament to the refined decorative sensibility of late 17th-century Emilia.A fine example of Baroque
