Description

Émile Gallé - Crystal Vase with Floral DesignAn elegant crystal vase signed by Gallé, featuring a slender and harmonious silhouette, consisting of a bulbous body topped by a long, flared neck and resting on a circular pedestal.It stands out for the fineness of its crystal, tinted in a delicate amber hue and enlivened by a rich, polychrome floral design. Slender plant stems, accompanied by flowers and buds in shades of blue, mauve, and pink, delicately wind their way across the body and neck of the vase, creating a composition full of lightness and poetry.Gallé's crystal production is particularly noteworthy: unlike his famous acid-etched multilayered glassworks, these pieces allow him to explore the transparency, luminosity, and color effects of crystal. The painted or enameled decoration further enriches the material by adding depth, finesse, and subtlety.Émile Gallé (1846-1904), a leading figure of the École de Nancy and one of the great masters of Art Nouveau, profoundly revitalized the art of glassmaking by drawing inspiration from nature. After his death, his studios continued this artistic and technical exploration, keeping his legacy alive.A refined decorative piece, illustrating another facet of the Gallé studios' craftsmanship.
