Description

We are offering for sale this large knife, believed to have come from the Cordier firm in Paris during the 19th century.The serrated blade is crafted in the medieval, Gothic style.The Cordier firm is believed to have been in business as early as 1819, later becoming Cordier Frères, Paris, and finally Cordier Ducour until 1878.However, there is no evidence that this firm manufactured this type of knife or letter opener with a serrated blade.We initially thought ours was older, but we must face the facts: it does indeed belong to the Neo-Gothic period, in the style of Viollet-le-Duc, circa 1830-1840.Very good condition.Shipping not included.
