Description

Antique jardinière in Louis XV Rococo style, silver-plated bronze, second half of the 19th century (Napoleon III period). The shaped, undulating body is richly cast and chased in high relief. A central cartouche with a bouquet of flowers is framed by acanthus scrolls. Lattice panels and flower sprays decorate the sides, and the piece stands on four scrolled feet. It includes its original removable metal liner.An elegant table centrepiece or planter, ideal for a dining table, console or mantelpiece, and a fine example of French Rococo revival decorative art.Condition: Good antique condition. The silver plating is worn in places, with the golden bronze showing through on the edges and high points. The liner has a natural verdigris patina and signs of age.
