Description

Crafted in bronze, this piece depicts a Chinese bronze candlestick adorned with a bearded "foreigner" and set on a polygonal black wooden base. It depicts a stocky, standing male figure with exotic ("foreign") features: bulging eyes, bushy eyebrows, a prominent nose, and a curly beard. The figure has a bare, rounded belly, adorned with a necklace of pendants (small colored inlays in shades of red and green are visible), a sash tied at the waist, a short tunic, and ribbons or shawls flowing down his back. Above the figure's head is a small, wavy bowl held by the right hand, and above that, a small vessel or vase coiled by a dragon (with cloud motifs), topped by another slightly open bowl fitted with a secondary threaded stem (perhaps for an electric lamp?).China, late Ming Dynasty
