Description

Large decorative panel featuring a 17th-century Italian fresco, which was previously removed, transferred to canvas, and then mounted (glued) onto a melamine panel to ensure its rigidity and preservation. A large circular medallion outlined in a gold border stands out against a stone-like background. The composition, inspired by antiquity and mythology, depicts The Love Affair of Mars and Venus (also evoking the heroic figures of Perseus and Andromeda through the detail of the winged helmet): Seated side by side in the clouds, the god of war--draped in a pinkish cloak and leaning on his long spear--tenderly embraces the goddess of love. Dressed in a golden-yellow tunic, she holds with one hand a light green veil fluttering in the windGood overall condition: previous and normal wear-and-tear
