creations were featured at major exhibitions in St. Louis (1904), in Dresden (1906), and in Saint Petersburg (1908), as well as at the World's Fair in Brussels (1910) and the Mathildenhöhe exhibition in Darmstadt (1914). See the Bröhan catalog.The clock rests on a flat base plate and features four wedge-shaped supports connected by three lateral crossbars. The domed case is adorned, on the front and sides, with symmetrical leaf motifs in relief. The enameled dial features Roman numerals and openwork hands. The movement is equipped with a pendulum suspension.The cast iron has an anthracite-gray patina. The brass pendulum is decorated with light blue, white, red, and black enamels and depicts a heraldic bird of prey.Height 55 cmWidth 27 cmDepth 19 cm
