Lafon and the grandson of the history painter Jacques-Emile Lafon. To avoid being confused with his father, he went by the name Keuleyan-Lafon or simply Keuleyan and worked exclusively as a landscape and seascape painter. He specialized in picturesque sunsets by the sea and moonlit coastlines. . They often depict the coastline near Agay on the French Riviera, as in this work. After World War I and his father's death, the artist once again signed his paintings "Jean Lafon."
