Description

Welcome to La Trésorerie!This signed Art Deco sculpture, created by Bulgarian sculptor Albert Tagger, depicts a young woman resting her head on her raised knee. Her short, slightly wavy hair, along with the rounded lines of her back and arms, lend the piece an air of serenity. The figure's cream-colored crackle enamel contrasts with the nuanced dark blue of the rectangular base.The sculpture bears the signature "Tager," with a single G, on the back of the dark blue base.Albert Tagger and the 1934 ExhibitionAlbert Tagger was a deaf Bulgarian sculptor who studied and worked in Paris. In 1934, he participated in the International Exhibition of Fine and Applied Arts by Deaf Artists, an international exhibition dedicated to the fine and applied arts of deaf artists. It was held from July 21 to August 11 at the Roerich Museum in New York. The small mahogany version of this model is said to have been presented there under the title Woman at Rest.Tagger created variations of this model in several materials. In addition to this glazed ceramic sculpture, there is a 30-cm version in patinated terracotta, a 30-cm version carved from rosewood, and a 17-cm version carved from mahogany. Among his other known works are the terracotta group The Farewell and the red chalk drawing Crouching Nude Woman.Creation and AttributionThis example dates from the 1930s. It was likely produced by the studio of ceramicist André Fau, based in Boulogne-sur-Seine--now Boulogne-Billancourt--near Paris. Fau had previously collaborated there with Marcel Guillard and continued his work after their collaboration ended in 1926.Material · Ceramic with crackled polychrome glazeHeight, including base · 31 cmBase dimensions · 15.4 × 20.8 cmCondition · A few small chips of glaze on the lower edge, near a corner of the base, visible in the photos.Thank you for visiting La Trésorerie.
