Description

Nude Woman with Fur, by Mária SzánthóAn elegant and sensual painting depicting a young woman reclining on a luxurious animal fur. The female figure, the focal point of the composition, is portrayed in a sinuous and relaxed pose, with refined attention to anatomical accuracy and the softness of her skin tone. The work stands out for its refined balance between sensuality and intimacy, its attention to detail, and the contrast between the figure's luminosity and the dark tones of the surroundings. A composition with a strong decorative impact, set within a richly carved frame.Mária Szánthó (Szeged, 1897 - Nagymágocs, 1998) was a Hungarian painter, considered a significant exponent of 20th-century pictorial naturalism. After initially earning a degree in piano from the Budapest Academy of Music, she turned to painting in the mid-1920s, studying under artists such as Géza Kukán, Bertalan Karlovszky, and Pál Fried. Her body of work is characterized primarily by portraits of women, nudes, and genre scenes, executed in a refined figurative style that emphasizes the realistic rendering of figures, the softness of skin tones, and the richness of the settings. She exhibited regularly in Budapest and achieved significant recognition abroad as well, with her works particularly appreciated in the United States and Japan. In 1939, she represented Hungary at the New York World's Fair.Technique: oil on canvasDimensions with frame: 100 × 80 cmCanvas dimensions: 90 × 70 cmProvenance: TriesteCode: 401Additional information: The artwork is available at our exhibition space in Badia Polesine (RO) and is sold with a certificate of authenticity.
