Description

Caucasian rug known as a Kouba, hand-knotted circa 1880-1900In good condition.A very sturdy rug.This piece measures 83 cm wide by 133 cm long.This beautifully refined artifact, 4 mm thick and made of wool-on-wool, features blue edging along both long sides, which is typical of Kouba rugs.The fairly understated decoration is elegant, featuring a motif of the tree of life and stylized flowers repeated on a midnight blue field.The borders, decorated with carnations and stylized flowers, are fine and delicate;these bands are separated from one another by striated lines in red and almond green.Carpets dating from before 1925 can be divided into five groups: the Kazakh, Karabakh or Jirvan, Kuba (kouba) and Dagestan.Carpets from the Karabakh region often feature soft patterns and are reminiscent of
