Description

Baroque sideboard = Display cabinet, corner piece, 18th century, circa 1740This sideboard features straight sides, a facade with a wavy base, and chamfered corners. Composed of two double-door sections, it rests on console legs at the front and has a right-angled back. The patterned walnut veneer is richly inlaid with parrots and flowers, notably tulips.The piece is topped by a profiled cornice. The doors feature framed panels. The main panel and the corner panels are glazed and divided into three sections by profiled muntins (the main panel is wavy, while the corner panels are straight).This piece, which possesses great charm despite its considerable height, was likely designed for a manor house.It is modeled after a full-length sideboard.Origin: PolandMaterials: Various types
