Description

The Church of the Redeemer (Chiesa del Redentore) on the island of Giudecca, designed and begun in 1577 by architect Andrea Palladio (died in 1580), completed by Antonio da Ponte in 1592. Dimensions: 110 x 87 cm the views of Venice, Grand Tour in Italy and Veduti in the eighteenth century, when it was very difficult to move, young English travelers were doing the Grand Tour, "it was an educational trip." They were crossing France, Switzerland. They went to Rome, Venice, Florence, Naples, Sicily. They were attracted by the ancient arts and wanted to visit Pompeii and Herculaneum, which had just been discovered. These trips took place according to the calendar of festivals held in cities .... for example the Redeemer Festival in Venice, the Palio of Siena ... that still exist. They were also
