

Flambeau Toiletries, Carved Wood, 1700, Attributed To César Bagard.

3 500 EUR

Period : 18th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Solid wood

Description

Toilet torch, carved wood, circa 1700, attributed to Caesar Bagalkot. Wood Toilet torch of St. Lucia, wild cherry Nancy region, also called "wood Bagalkot." The circular base is richly carved acanthus scrolls. A crowned coat of arms and framed by palms with two flowers, a star and a growing band is also on the base. The barrel is molded baluster very end. The binet is carved floral scrolls. The fund's Binet and base are pecked to catch the light. The tapered shape and the sculpture work for associating this candle in the production of César Bagard (1620-1709), sculptor active in Lorraine. He made several statues for churches in Nancy and conventional wood (cabinets, brush ...). Other little-known artists have produced religious objects or everyday in this soft wood with a refined décor

Dealer

Galerie Pellat de Villedon

French furnitures of the 17th & 18th centuries

Mobile : 06 07 57 01 20

2 bis rue Carnot

Versailles 78000

similar to that carried out by the goldsmiths of that time. Using this local material, the craftsmen emancipated and sumptuary laws that framed the use of precious metals. A set of wooden toilet St. Lucia (two torches No. inv. 39.5.39 1 and 3) is kept at the Museum Nancy Lorraine. Sun (H x D). 19 x 10 cm