Description

Large pitcher or jug in ceramic or chamotte earth with scarified decoration on the body, by Jacques Pouchain * for Atelier Dieulefit, vintage 1960s twentieth century. This pitcher is in good condition and is very decorative. Signed in the ass. A note: some wear of time, see photos. * Jacques POUCHAIN (1925-2015): At the end of the 40s, Jacques Pouchain leaves Paris and interrupts his training as an architect to devote himself to art in the south of France. He installed a ceramic workshop at Dieulefit where he created a personal work and a utilitarian production. His practice of a white enamel resting on a manganese oxide with an engraved decoration is quite close to the Anglo-Saxon practices of the 50s. In the 60s, he approaches the abstraction before developing, in the 70s, the theme of
